Arabs vote end to oil embargo

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Arab oil producers decided Monday to lift the oil embargo against the United States, Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The world's major oil producers scheduled another meeting here to decide whether to lift the oil embargo against the United States.

The session was set for 11 a.m. EDT, and Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told reporters the embargo would be lifted in that session. Algeria's official newspaper El Moudjahid also said the embargo would be lifted.

But in Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahran reported the decision to lift the oil embargo may be delayed for a week to refer it to an Arab foreign ministers meeting on March 25. It said Libya still rejected the lifting of the ban.

The ministers from nine Arab countries met for three and a half hours Sunday but failed to agree. Syria and Libya were reported blocking a unanimous decision to lift the blockade. However, one unconfirmed report said Syria's objections had been ironed out, and Libya would abstain from the decision by the rest.

Several of the ministers met until late Sunday night in an attempt to draft a consensus document. Others contacted their governments for further instructions, sources said.

Earlier Sunday, 13 of the world's major oil-producing nations, including seven of the Arab states, concluded a weekend meeting here with the announcement they would maintain their posted prices on crude oil until July 1.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) said its decision not to raise the artificial price on which their share of the oil revenue is calculated was a good will gesture toward the leading oil consumers — Western Europe, Japan and the United States. But a spokesman warned that unless the industrial nations controlled their "galloping inflation" and the prices they charge the oil nations for their manufactured products, they would raise the oil price again.

The OPEC countries produce 80 per cent of world oil exports.

The Arab oil meeting was a followup to one in Tripoli, Libya, last Wednesday. It produced reports that the ministers had decided to end the boycott they agreed on last October in an attempt to pressure the United States to modify its pro-Israeli policy. A formal decision and announcement was predicted for the Vienna meeting.

Instead, it quickly became apparent that the ministers had arrived in Vienna with their differences unresolved. Algeria, one of the three hard-liners, was reported to have been won over by Egypt and Saudi Arabia, the leaders of the antiembargo bloc, but Syria and Libya held out, insiders said.

Libya has adamantly opposed lifting the embargo because it claims Washington's policy remains directed against the Arabs.

Portuguese coup attempt proves flop

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Portuguese government appeared securely in control of the whole country today and tension eased after the failure of an attempted coup by young infantry officers.

Military police were holding between 20 and 30 army officers in the Lisbon area in addition to the 200 young officers and infantrymen who advanced on Lisbon in a motorized column Saturday.

Troops loyal to the authoritarian regime of Premier Marcello Caetano turned the rebels back without firing a shot. They returned to their barracks at Caldas da Rainha, 60 miles north of Lisbon, and surrendered several hours later.

Lisbon remained calm, and no disturbances were reported elsewhere in the country.

Sirica says jury findings 'material'

Probers get secret report

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today ordered the secret Watergate jury report delivered to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

Sirica said the report "draws no accusatory conclusions ... it renders no moral or social judgments."

"The report is a simple and straightforward compilation of information gathered by the grand jury and no more," he said.

Sirica delayed implementation of his order for two days to permit filing of appeals.

Sirica said in his opinion that the grand jury "strongly recommends" that its report and a satchel filled with evidence should go to the impeachment committee because:

"Having carefully examined the contents of the grand jury report, the court is satisfied that there can be no question regarding their materiality to the House Judiciary Committee's investigation."

"The person on whom the report focuses, the President of the United States, has not objected to its release to the committee," Sirica said.

"Other persons are involved only indirectly," he added.

"... And although it has not been emphasized in this opinion, it should not be forgotten that we deal in a matter of the most critical moment to the nation, an impeachment investigation involving the President of the United States," Sirica said.

"It would be difficult," he said, "to conceive of a more compelling need than that of this country for an unswervingly fair inquiry based on all the pertinent information."

The judge said it would be up to the House Judiciary Committee "to determine the significance" of the evidence and that the court offered no opinion as to relevance.

Sirica also said the Judiciary committee rather than the court should consider a request from White House counsel for permission to review the grand jury evidence.

The grand jury gave the report to Sirica on March 1, the same day it indicted seven former Nixon administration and Nixon campaign aides on charges of conspiring to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Sirica said last week he has spent a lot of time working on the decision.

"It's been late night work, early morning hours, things like that," he said in a brief telephone interview.

That decision is expected to be his

Wilson faces voting test

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's minority Labor government faced its first voting test in the House of Commons today and was expected to win with the help of abstentions by some opposition members.

Wilson's chances were also helped by a declaration from the Trades Union Congress that it would support the government if it retained the government wage board set up by the last Conservative government to curb wage hikes.

Although the Labor party's campaign platform promised to abolish the wage board with which Prime Minister Edward Heath tried to limit wage increases to seven per cent, the 10-million-member TUC said the government should give priority to repeal of the Industrial Relations Act even if this meant temporary retention of the wage board.

The Industrial Relations Act was the Conservatives' attempt to outlaw wildcat strikes and institute a system of legally binding wage contracts. It has been a resounding failure.

Wilson's first test in the House of Commons was expected on a Conservative motion attacking the absence from the government's program of a statutory system of wage controls. But there was a possibility that the Conservatives would not press their motion to a vote because of the prospect of embarrassing abstentions within their own ranks.

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Before he became a federal judge in 1958, George L. Hart Jr. spent more than 20 years as a Republican party worker.

In those days, long before Watergate, Hart often raised as much as $500,000 a year as GOP chairman for the District of Columbia. "Every contributor of $100 or more was listed by name and address ... every expenditure of as little as 10 cents was listed individually," Hart recalled in an interview.

"That was the way I thought campaign funds were handled ... I must have been a babe in the woods," he added.

Recently, Hart has begun learning about Watergate-style Republican last major act before stepping down as chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Washington. Sirica, who must relinquish the post Tuesday when he turns 70, will be succeeded by Judge George L. Hart Jr.

Sirica plans to remain an active judge after stepping down as chief judge. He already has assigned himself the Watergate cover-up trial.

The grand jury gave Sirica the report March 1 along with an indictment charging seven former Nixon administration and campaign aides with conspiracy to block the probe of the Watergate break-in.

The report and a satchel filled with evidence were said by sources to concern President Nixon's role in Watergate. The grand jury reportedly (Please turn to page 2)

Bypass open March 26

The $6.1 million U.S. 35 bypass will be opened to traffic with formal ceremonies at 11 a.m. Tuesday, March 26, Paul Rooney, project superintendent announced today.

Rooney said J. Phillip Richley, Ohio highway director, will be among the guests. Other state and local officials will take part in the program.

The six-mile, four-lane bypass, extending from Ohio 753 to Palmer Road, was started in March of 1972.

A companion project, the $2 million extension of Ohio 653 from U.S. 35 to U.S. 22, has been open to traffic for more than a year.

Although the main bypass originally was not scheduled for completion before this summer, work proceeded faster than was expected, and paving was completed more than a month ago. Electrical installations have held up the opening since that time.

Mills sees Nixon out of office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, predicts President Nixon will be out of office by November.

Mills, chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee and vice chairman of the committee looking into the President's taxes, was asked in a televised interview Sunday whether he expects Nixon will be in office by the November election.

"I do not," Mills responded.

"By resignation, by impeachment?" Mills replied: "One or the other, I do not know which at this time."

Appearing on the CBS program "Face the Nation," Mills said he believes Nixon will come under increasing pressure from within the Republican party because of his tax problems and fears of lost votes in November.

The Arkansas Democrat told one of the newsmen interviewing him:

"I would think that probably you and I both may well be surprised when the vote occurs on the articles of impeachment over the number on the Republican side who may vote for those articles of impeachment."

Mills added: "If he stays in office as President, members of his own party know that they'll lose seats in the House."

Commenting on Nixon's income tax problems, primarily involving a deduction for donation of his vice presidential papers to the National Archives, Mills said:

"There is a possibility if (the investigation) proves that the deduction of the papers given to the archives was improper that there would be fraud on the part of someone."

He said about the capital gains section of the President's taxes, "I've seen no evidence whatsoever of fraud."

Mills added: "Now I'm not saying the President, under any circumstance, but there could be some fraud in connection with the preparation of his return, if he included a deduction for the gift of those papers to the archives in the instance where the papers were given after the cutoff date of July 25, 1969."

Mills said that the decision about whether fraud was involved is up to the Internal Revenue Service.

Mills said last weekend he expects that Nixon will not finish his term of office, mainly because of pressures resulting from his tax difficulties.

A White House spokesman later called the Mills' statement "a dirty, low political ploy."

State Lottery eyed by Ohio Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nearly a year after voters lifted a ban against a state lottery, the legislature still is trying to put loose ends together to get it on the road.

The pending matters include a question of whether tickets will be sold in liquor spots, and if, in fact, the lawmakers will leave intact the Lottery Commission's decision to put the state headquarters in Cleveland.

Although other preliminary work is going ahead, the legislature is expected to resolve these questions in the near future so they will not become a possible roadblock. For weeks now, lottery advocates have charged "foot dragging."

Sen. Ronald L. Mottl, D-24 Parma, and others assert the state is losing millions in revenue to lottery operations in neighboring Michigan and Pennsylvania.

Wednesday afternoon, the Senate Commerce & Labor Committee is expected to consider a House-approved bill that would clear the way for sale of lottery tickets in taverns, bars, and other holders of state liquor permits.

Present rules of the Liquor Control Commission forbid all types of gambling and would prohibit sale of lottery tickets, said State Liquor Director Richard Guggenheim. But passage of the pending bill would be a mandate for the commission to change its rule, he said.

The issue created a furor in the House Feb. 26 when the bill squeaked through by a 53-33 vote with 50 needed for passage.

The vote followed an earlier defeat of the bill 49-38, and long debate. Some insisted the House was advocating sales to the inebriated, including those with moderate or low incomes.

New chief judge long-time GOP wheelhorse politics in his position as a U.S. District judge.

And, starting Tuesday, Hart takes over as chief judge of the District Court, succeeding the man given much of the credit for exposing Watergate, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. The change will be marked today by a luncheon ceremony at a meeting of the judicial conference.

Sirica turns 70 Tuesday and must step down as chief judge, though he plans to remain on the bench and already has assigned himself the Watergate cover-up trial.

As the new chief judge, Hart will receive any future Watergate indictments and assign the cases.

Because of the administrative duties of his new post, Hart said it isn't likely

"I would assign one of the long and protracted Watergate cases to myself while I am chief judge."

In September 1972, Sirica assigned himself the case of seven men indicted on charges of burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping in connection with the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate office building.

At the trial in January 1973, five of the defendants pleaded guilty. The other two, G. Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord Jr., were convicted by a jury.

Throughout, Sirica made it clear he didn't believe all the facts were being brought out. Finally, in March, McCord wrote the judge a letter in which he said the defendants had been pressured into pleading guilty and also that higherups were involved in the break-in.

Nearly a year later, a grand jury indicted seven former administration and campaign aides on charges of trying to block the Watergate investigation. A good deal of the credit was given to Sirica's dogged determination to get at the truth.

How does Hart feel, taking over as chief judge from the man whom Watergate made into a folk hero?

"It's just another job," he said, his voice still carrying a trace of the Tidewater Virginia drawl of his native Roanoke. "I frankly don't consider from a judge's point of view that a Watergate is different than any other case ... Some cases are more difficult than others, some are longer than others."

From the bench, Hart strives to bring cases to trial swiftly. He can become testy with lawyers who ask for what he considers too much time for filing pretrial motions.

Federal rules of procedure set six months as the recommended maximum time from indictment to trial.

But as for Watergate, said Hart, "All of these cases cannot be tried in six months. They can't possibly be."

Hart is the son of a court reporter. His father wanted him to be a lawyer but the son dreamed of becoming an engineer and building bridges. But finally he shifted to law. After being graduated from Virginia Military Institute, Hart went on to Harvard Law School where he got his degree in 1930.

Both Hart and Sirica had successful law practices in Washington and were active Republicans before being appointed to the court by President Eisenhower.

Sirica, who left a mark more likely to be noted in history books than in the archives of the District Court, predicted that Hart will "be a great chief judge. He's a fine trial judge. He's an excellent administrator."

As for himself, Sirica plans to go on vacation, the first one he's had since the first Watergate trial.

Coal miners back on job

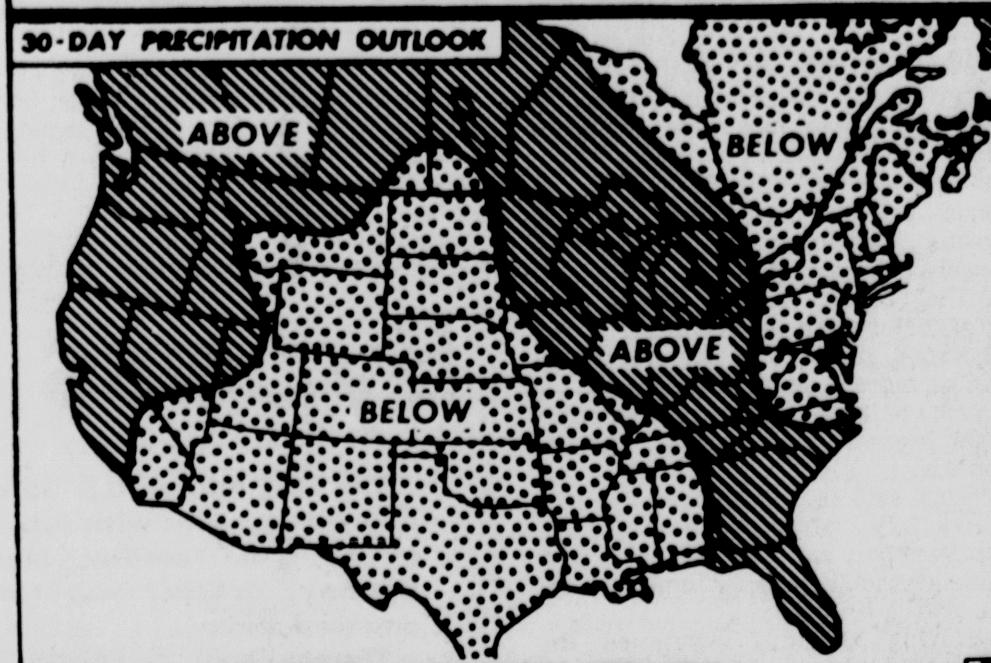

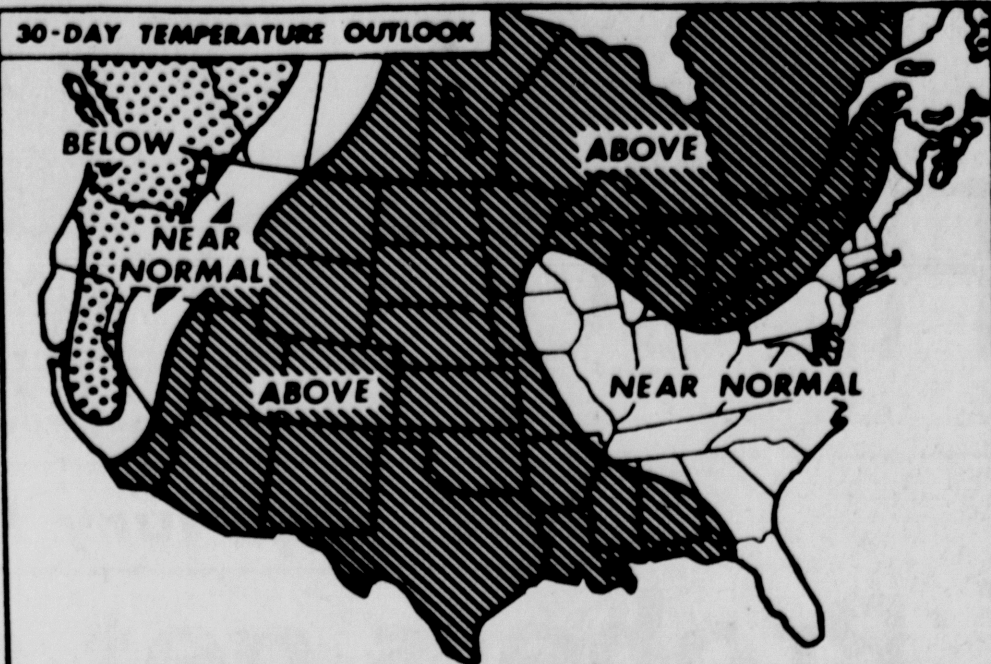

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Coal miners returned to work today in the last remaining holdout areas of West Virginia, bringing a three-week old strike to an end.

"It looks like everyone's back to work," said Ed Stone, District 29 executive board member in Welch. He said most of the dissident miners in McDowell and Mercer counties reported to work on the midnight shift this morning.

The strike began Feb. 25 at the Maitland No. 9 mine in McDowell County when miners said they were unable to get enough gasoline to commute to work.

The work stoppage spread across the southern coal fields during the next few days, eventually putting 27,600 miners off the job.

After an earlier attempt to satisfy the miners failed, Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. last week suspended for 30 days the controversial quarter tank gasoline rule, which miners said had caused most of the problem.

asked Sirica to give it to the House impeachment inquiry.

Meanwhile, Sunday, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said he expects President Nixon to be out of office by November. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and vice chairman of the joint committee looking into President Nixon's taxes, said on the CBS program "Face the Nation" that Nixon would be impeached or would resign by then.

And presidential adviser Bryce Harlow said that the White House, by refusing to turn over its files, was trying to help the committee "decide specifically what they are trying to do." He said White House action was designed to help the committee focus its inquiry.

In another Watergate-related development, Newsweek magazine has quoted Egyptian President Anwar Sadat as saying that the impeachment of President Nixon would be a "real tragedy" for the Middle East and the world. Newsweek published an interview with Sadat in this week's issue.

Sadat was quoted as saying that Nixon has "revolutionized the thrust of U.S. policy in our area and before that in the rest of the world."

Newsweek also published a poll by pollster George Gallup's organization that indicated a majority of Americans want Nixon tried in the Senate on Watergate-related charges.

And, in Los Angeles, Saturday, President Nixon's tax lawyer said the original deed by which Nixon's vice presidential papers were turned over to the National Archives was destroyed when a replacement deed was drafted and signed April 10, 1970. Lawyer Frank DeMarco said the original deed was signed in California April 21, 1969.

FBI director sets testimony on job, politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley is scheduled to testify at a Senate hearing on legislation intended to insulate him and his successors from political pressures. The hearing today, on a bill by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., is the first by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on FBI oversight since it was named last August to monitor the operations of the investigative agency.

The bill provides for a 10-year term for the FBI director but permits reappointment for one additional 10-year term. Both appointments would be subject to Senate confirmation.

However, the director, like any other presidential appointee, could be dismissed for cause.

Present law sets no limit on how long an FBI director may serve. J. Edgar Hoover held the office from 1924 until his death in May 1972.

Byrd's bill and the establishment of the oversight subcommittee grew out of President Nixon's ill-starred nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to succeed Hoover.

Byrd and some other Judiciary Committee members contended Gray had yielded to White House pressures in the FBI investigation of the Watergate case, and eventually Gray asked Nixon to withdraw his nomination.

Then Kelley, police chief in Kansas City, Mo., for 12 years and a former FBI agent, was nominated as Hoover's successor. He was confirmed by the Senate in June of last year.

Byrd said the confirmation hearings indicated "Congress must take steps to insulate the director of the FBI from possible political pressures — especially from the White House and, conceivably, even from Congress."

He observed that a 10-year term for the director would overlap by at least two years the tenure of any president.

Byrd said this would eliminate many of the pressures that could be brought to bear if a director were to be appointed or reappointed each time a president took office.

Byrd's bill would apply to Kelley's tenure, since it would be retroactive to June 1 of last year. However, before Kelley could serve 10 years he will have reached the mandatory retirement age of 70.

Hoover was able to serve past 70 years because of an executive order waiving the retirement requirement.

Small deer dies from beating

NEW YORK (AP) — A tiny fallow deer severely beaten by vandals at the Central Park Zoo has died of the injuries.

It was the most seriously injured of five deer pummeled with heavy sticks in the incident March 7.

The deer suffered skull injuries and a broken leg and was the only one to be hospitalized. It died Sunday night at the ASPCA Hospital, the Parks Administration reported.

Parks Administrator Edwin L. Weisl Jr. stepped up a zoo security program to protect the animals following the incident. There have been no arrests.

Stock list goes down

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market backed away from its recent highs today, pressured by continuing uncertainties in the Arab oil outlook.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.10 at 881.73, and losers overwhelmed gainers by more than 2 to 1 in generally sluggish activity on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said some investors were troubled by the news that Arab oil ministers had put off a decision on the future of the embargo on shipments to the United States, while agreeing to leave prices at their present high levels for three more months. The ministers were meeting again today to consider the embargo issue further.

Oil, auto, and other travel-related issues were generally weak. Exxon was down 1/4 at 87 1/2. General Motors slid 1/4 to 53. Howard Johnson slipped 1/4 to 12 1/2, and Ramada Inns was off 1/4 to 8 1/4.

The NYSE's noon index of all its listed common stocks was off .28 at 52.90.

Brandt hurt by election

MAINZ, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats suffered another setback when the vote count today showed that the conservative Christian Democrats won major gains in Rhineland-Palatinate state.

The result does not affect Brandt's standing in the federal parliament in Bonn, but political observers said it indicates growing voter dissatisfaction with his government. Earlier this month the Social Democrats lost badly in Hamburg.

State politicians, however, emphasized that local issues played the major role in the result in Rhineland-Palatinate, the country's sixth largest state. The Christian Democrats won 51.7 per cent of the vote and 867 seats in Sunday's election for county and city council posts, up from 43.9 per cent and 660 seats in the last communal election in 1969.

The Social Democrats won only 35.5 per cent of the vote — down from 41.5 in 1969 — and lost 29 seats to finish with 600.

Mt. Whitney hikers restricted due to overuse of trails

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service has been forced to limit public access to Mt. Whitney. The solitude of the highest point in the continental United States is being threatened by tramping feet.

First climbed by three fishermen in 1873, the peak is now one of the most frequently climbed in the world. Hundreds are on the trail daily during summer months.

"It's a tough thing when you have to restrict the public from public land," says Ed Waldapfel, public information officer for Inyo National Forest. "But we haven't found another answer."

Under a plan being announced today, the Forest Service will allow only 75 persons per day onto the 10.7 mile Mt. Whitney trail, described by hikers as "just a long walk."

Because it is so readily accessible to the public, the trail to the 14,495-foot summit has been beset by problems brought on primarily by the sheer numbers of hikers.

Last year 15,700 people used the trail, including 1,164 during the Labor Day weekend. During summer months, it's not unusual to have more than 250 people on the trail in one day.

"Three major problems have developed from this intense use," Waldapfel said in a recent interview. "Inadequate sanitation, loss of wilderness solitude and damage to the resources."

He paints a sad picture of litter and waste lining the trail, vegetation destroyed and a "loss of wilderness quality."

Township trustees forgotten men

DELTA, Ohio (AP) — These days when state and national politicians get all the publicity, a township trustee enjoys little fame.

Robert Meintzer, usually dressed in a red flannel shirt and overalls and bearing little resemblance to a politician, says the rewards come in helping others.

Watergate ranking 3rd as issue?

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Republican leaders feel inflation and the energy crisis top Watergate as the primary issues in this fall's congressional election campaigns, according to the Gallup Poll.

In a nationwide survey of Republican county chairmen, 71 per cent named inflation as the leading issue and 65 per cent listed the energy crisis. Watergate was named by 32 per cent.

The Gallup organization said 2,384 chairmen returned questionnaires in the mail poll, a response rate of more than 65 per cent.

The chairmen played down the effect of Watergate on their party's congressional candidates. Forty per cent said the issue would affect their candidates "somewhat," 31 per cent said "hardly at all," 17 per cent said "not at all," 11 per cent said "a great deal," and 1 per cent gave no opinion.

County chairmen in the East expected the most fallout from Watergate. Seventeen per cent said they expected it would hurt a great deal. That response came from 8 per cent in the South, 11 per cent in the Midwest and 15 per cent in the far West.

Some 15 per cent of the chairmen said accusing the Democrats of using Watergate for partisan purposes would be one of the strongest arguments the GOP could use in the coming campaign.

This was the fourth most frequent response, with other answers being charges of an ineffective Democratic Congress, claims that the Republicans have maintained peace, and claims of good management in international affairs in general, and in international trade.

"Most people don't know what a township trustee does," says the 53-year-old Meintzer. "I guess it's just our image."

A livestock farmer, Meintzer has been a Swan Creek Township trustee in Fulton County for 12 years. But he says there even are people in his own neighborhood who don't know it.

"In the past 15 years, the township trustee has become less of a public figure," Meintzer said. "He's seldom involved in much controversy. But he still gets the job done."

The public service provided by township trustees usually is on an individual basis, he points out. "If somebody calls me about a chuckhole in the road, I get one of our fellows to go out and fix it," Meintzer said.

And the township is one of the few levels of government where citizens can get results without a lot of red tape, he contends.

"I don't have to call four or five people to get something done or approved," Meintzer said. "When somebody has a problem, we get it solved."

Meintzer's township has about 5,000 residents. But seldom do more than one or two attend the twice-monthly trustee meetings.

"They don't come until they have a problem and need help," he said.

Trustees get their operating funds from the county, and they don't have legal authority to levy taxes.

"But we're fighting to have the General Assembly return more local rule to us," Meintzer said.

"We feel that townships should have more voice in determining rural issues directly affecting them than the county government."

Meintzer is vice president of the Ohio Township Trustees Association, which is directing the movement in the legislature.

Youth hostels get more use

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — Use by transients of youth hostels in Nova Scotia last summer was approximately 50 per cent greater than the previous year, says Patrick Pardoe, regional coordinator for the Secretary of State Hostels. Approximately 40 per cent of the users come from the United States.

Black caucus nixes new party

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Black leaders and organizers have backed off from a proposal to form a national black political party. But they agreed at their convention here to raise $17.5 million for minority causes.

Delegates voted at the final session Sunday to table the controversial motion for a third major party after spokesmen for the Louisiana and Ohio delegations termed it unrealistic and called for its rejection.

The Louisiana delegation spokesman said ideological differences among blacks presently made formation of such a party impractical. The Ohio spokesman said blacks must build a viable base in their local communities before attempting to create a national party.

Conference co-convenor Immanuel Baraka of Newark, N.J., called tabling of the motion "a reasonable view."

He said the motion will be brought up again at a September meeting of the Black National Political Assembly, which organized the three-day National Black Political Convention here.

Conference delegates earlier ratified a Louisiana delegation motion attacking the National Democratic party for allegedly excluding minorities from its meaningful deliberations.

In voting to raise $17.5 million over the next three years for minority causes, the delegates proposed establishment of a Black United Fund to handle fund-raising effort aimed at small contributors and black businesses and organizations.

They set a timetable of $2.5 million in 1974, $5 million in 1975 and $10 million in 1976. They said the first $2.5 million was based on the assumption that at least 10 per cent of the estimated 25 million blacks in the United States would contribute $1 each.

The money will support a Foundation for Human Development, which will provide resources for human development and economic projects among black minorities around the world. It also will go to support liberation struggles in areas of Africa.

The conference also voted to work for a new Homestead Act for social reconstruction and to coordinate efforts to finance and establish black-owned television and radio stations.

Approved by voice vote was a resolution condemning U.S. congressmen who voted $2.2 billion in military aid for Israel "to wage war against Arab peoples while at the same time appropriating less than $25 million to help six African nations suffering from drought."

Presley concert held in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Glittering in a white jumpsuit, Elvis Presley drew screams and cheers with a homecoming concert in Memphis, where he started his career 20 years ago.

Presley, 39, gave four concerts over the weekend and will give another Wednesday. A Red Cross volunteer at the opening concert Saturday, attended by 12,000, said lots of aspirin and earplugs were given out, "but nobody needed the oxygen tank."

The singer did such numbers as "C.C. Rider" and "I Can't Help Falling in Love with You."

Opinion And Comment

Let's get behind Deer Creek

The proposed seven-million dollar improvement of the Deer Creek Park facility to include an inn, year round cabins and camping facilities should be strongly supported locally.

Central Ohio recreation areas are not comparable in size or in accommodations to those in other areas of the state.

In stands to reason that Columbus will send the largest contingent of visitors into the park each year because of the city's proximity and population.

However, Fayette, Highland and other surrounding counties are bound to benefit as well — not only from the improved recreational facilities, but also from the financial shot in the arm the project will engender.

We would like to encourage boaters, campers, people and organizations interested in improved area recreational potential to write to Natural Resources Director William B. Nye in Columbus.

The park will be a development from which both present and future generations will derive pleasure, and strong local support now from concerned voters will help our legislators facilitate a smooth and speedy transition from drawing board to reality.

A WORD EDGEWISE. . . by John P. Roche

Moynihan in India

Several years before I went to Washington, I heard rumors that the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) was attempting an under-the-table deal with the Soviet Ministry of State Security (KGB).

The transaction involved the United States giving India to the Soviets for 10 tons of caviar, two star ballerinas and a couple of French Impressionist paintings from the Hermitage. According to the press leak which blew the whole caper sky high, the project aborted because Moscow suspected that American Ambassador John Kenneth Galbraith, enraged, might defeat. And they were having enough problems with their own economists.

Seriously, however, it is hard to appreciate the impact of the Indian intellectual elite—which runs the country to the extent it is run — on normal, healthy Americans. I have seen men — who, eyeball to eyeball with Khrushchev, had not blinked — turn into raving maniacs at the mention of the Indian government.

Indeed, in the days when the malevolent V.K. Krishna Menon was the Indian envoy to the United Nations, the American delegation allegedly had a special padded room where those who had been dealing with Menon could go, throw bricks at mirrors, break chairs over tables and generally purge themselves of their aggressions.

THIS IS NOT accidental, but arises from the special cultural category to which the Indian elite belongs. They are essentially pseudo left-wing British intellectuals. Many attended excellent British universities and they are distinctive in any crowd by their accent, which resembles upper-class British and emerges in staccato bursts. They have also, alas, assimilated the Pavlovian anti-Americanism of the British left-wing intelligentsia — anti-Americanism founded not so much on politics as on cultural snobbery: "How could such crude types who would never be accepted in a good London club, or at an Oxford high table, be so powerful?"

A natural by-product of this patronization is the assumption that any intelligent American will be anti-American. Some time in 1967, when I was in the White House, I agreed to brief a group of foreign journalists on the fundamental premises of our foreign policy. We covered the waterfront on a fairly amicable basis, particularly given the fact that most of them were — to say the least — unenthusiastic about Vietnam, until an Indian rose. His question was unique in my rather varied experience: "Do you have the effrontery," he said, "to ask us to believe your government's policy is not imperialistic?"

I had two options: 1) throw the podium at him, or 2) engage in some dirty pool of my own. Visualizing a headline: "Johnson Aide Assaults Journalist," I settled for the latter.

Among my few talents is mimicry, so I looked him in the eye and said in my best upper-class British accent: "Rather, old boy." Someone hastily adjourned the session.

THIS IS BACKGROUND for the present adventures of Daniel Patrick Moynihan as American ambassador to India. Pat Moynihan comes from a working-class Irish-American background, as does his delightful wife Liz (Brennan), and I suspect that the hair on the back of his neck bristles (as mine does) when he hears that accent. (I know this is irrational, perhaps even sinful — but there it is.)

Consequently, when Pat was named to the Embassy in New Delhi, a number of his clansmen began making book on how long he could stay the course. As I recall, our chaplain, the Rev. Andrew Greeley of the University of Chicago, in a characteristic outburst of compassion, gave him six months. I was a bit more optimistic, feeling that Liz could keep the cork in him.

But now he has done it. The American ambassador to India has not only refused to be anti-American, he has also had the "effrontery" to defend his nation's policy in the Indian Ocean. We have arranged to enlarge our existing facilities on a British island, Diego Garcia, a thousand miles south of India. A group of Indian journalists, probably expecting Moynihan to resign in protest against his patent act of aggression, raised the matter with him. After all, they said, what right does the U.S. have to locate in the Indian Ocean?

Refusing to do penance, Pat pointed out that the Indian Ocean could just as well be called the Madagascar Sea and that frankly he thought they should mind their own business. Some are still in shock.

Now the question is: What outrage is he planning for St. Patrick's Day? Stand fast, Moynihan, stand fast! Up the Green!

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD;

I would like to state my objection to the type of coverage given gun legislation in The Record-Herald under the (AP) dateline.

The March 14 issue of The Record-Herald buried an important action of the United States Senate on Page 15, giving it only two sentences. The working of the second sentence is confusing, if not actually misleading.

This is only a minor point compared to the article which appears on Page 4 of the March 15 issue. The article is totally misleading regarding the events which took place in the Ohio House of Representatives on the night of March 5, 1974.

To begin with, it is not exactly quick reporting. Those of us who appeared to testify before the House Judiciary Committee were citizens concerned about proposed gun legislation. We strongly resent being referred to as "gunners" and other terms used in the article. The title implies that we somehow "lost" in our efforts.

We were successful in our efforts to kill House Joint Resolution 44. We were successful in spite of the treatment we received from the chairman of the committee. I received a written apology from the House Minority leader, Charles F. Kurfess, for the lack of space provided to opponents of the two bills under consideration. We were successful in seeing the handgun confiscation bill defeated and we are continuing in our efforts to defeat House Bill 1192. This bill would ban inexpensive handguns.

We were not engaged in a "talking contest", as the title states. We were citizens trying to take part in the legislative process. It is unfortunate that those people who traveled many miles to attend this hearing were denied the right of public access to the legislative process.

There's more than one way to lose weight

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that every time a person has sexual relations he burns up 300 calories.

I would like to lose 10 pounds, and my husband would like to lose 20 pounds.

Do you recommend this method of losing weight? And how many calories would a person have to burn to lose one pound?

NON PUTON

DEAR NO: I'm advised that one must burn 3,500 calories to lose one pound of body fat. There can be no reliable figure on the number of calories burned during sexual relations because physical exertion varies with the individual.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the seven year old Lutheran boy who wanted to turn Jewish because his sister who was being raised Jewish, got seven presents (one for each day of Hanukkah) and he only got one present for Christmas.

His parents should give him seven presents for Christmas and let him decide whether he wants to go to the Protestant route or the Jewish route. He might even decide to be a Roman Catholic and go to Notre Dame and beat U.C.L.A. again some day!

BILL K.

DEAR BILL: Judging from some of the names of those fellows on Notre Dame's teams, you don't have to be a Roman Catholic to play for Notre Dame.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, March 18, the 77th day of 1974. There are 288 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1959, Hawaii was admitted to the union as the 50th state.

On this date —

In 1776, During the American Revolution, George Washington's troops occupied Boston after evacuation of the British.

In 1837, Grover Cleveland, who served as the 22nd and 24th president of the United States, was born in Caldwell, N.J.

In 1937, more than 400 persons, mostly children, were killed in a gas explosion in a school in New London, Texas.

In 1962, a cease-fire in the Algerian war was signed by French and Algerian rebel delegations in Evian-les-Bains, France.

In 1965, exiled King Farouk of Egypt died in Rome, Italy.

In 1970, Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk was deposed as Cambodia's chief of state while on a visit to Moscow.

Ten years ago: the United States protested to the Soviet Union over detainment of three crewmen of an American military plane shot down over East Germany.

Five years ago: the United States and the Soviet Union proposed an international treaty to bar nuclear weapons from the ocean floor.

One year ago: President Lon Nol of Cambodia ordered stern measures under a state of emergency declared after the bombing of the presidential palace in Phnom Penh.

Today's birthdays: Cardinal Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore is 76. Composer Alan Hovhaness is 63.

Thought for today: A friend is, one might say, a second self — Cicero, Roman statesman and philosopher, 106-43 B.C.

Teachers push new Cincy plan

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Teachers Association will present the board of education with an alternate plan at a special meeting today in hopes of settling the controversial teacher transfer policy designed to achieve a racial balance.

CTA representatives, in a three-hour meeting Sunday, drafted and approved by a 71 per cent vote a plan to modify the 75-25 white-black ratio which is to go into effect at the city's 105 public schools this fall.

"We feel our plan is a form of gradualism with a definite deadline on the number of years before racial balance will be achieved," said Harriet Russell, president of the CTA.

The plan would call for partial transfer of teachers by Sept. 1 and complete transfers by Sept. 1, 1975.

Acupuncture needed

TORONTO (AP) — Acupuncture should be a priority item in Canadian medical research, Dr. Gustave Gingras, president of the Canadian Medical Assn., said recently. The Montreal physician said major research and controlled clinical trials should be conducted with this Chinese method of anesthetizing patients by manipulating needles in various nerves.

Road, street work slated

A variety of tasks loom this week for city street, county road and state highway department crews.

City street department workers will be building a manhole on Florence Street, sealing cracks in several different streets throughout Washington C.H., and clearing brush from the banks of Paint Creek, according to Bill Duncan, general foreman.

Gene Fitzpatrick, superintendent of the Ohio Department of Transportation garage in Fayette County, said the state crews will be cleaning mowing equipment in preparation for an April inspection.

State workers also will be crack-sealing on Ohio 753-S and Ohio 734, west of Jeffersonville, patching various roads, cutting trees and running some berm drags.

Three drainage projects appear on the schedule for the Fayette County road crews. Charles P. Wagner, Fayette County engineer, said the county workers will be occupied with drainage projects on Jamison Road, Miller Road in Marion Township and Inskeep Road in Jefferson Township.

The county crews will also be repairing culverts on Allen Road in Jasper Township and on Barger Road in Green Township.

OSU senior drowns while skin diving

KEY LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Terry Gene Grieser, 21, of Springfield, Ohio, a senior at Ohio State University, drowned Sunday while on a skin diving outing with a group of friends.

Authorities said Grieser, who had been vacationing here since Thursday, became separated from his friends. His body later was found lying on the bottom.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Hardly a day goes by without a congressman or senator appearing on commercial and public radio or TV to comment on vital issues of the day. Does this sufficiently inform the public?

Congress thinks not. To fill any information gap in the hustings, it has its own broadcast operation—the well-equipped House and Senate recording studios—set aside for its members, not the journalists covering them.

The members use the studios regularly or irregularly to record, at their own cost, their own reports or comments on various issues. They then provide the recordings to requesting radio and TV stations back home.

The recording formats vary. One frequently used approach, says a House guide to studio use, is a "one-minute television report for member's comment on news events or items of interest in member's district; report can easily be inserted in local newscast."

Another, the guide says, is a "television interview in a 5- to 15-minute format for interviewing government officials."

Yet another is a "regular radio or television program, usually a five-minute production to be sent to local radio or television stations for broadcast... format provides member with opportunity to discuss a topic at length."

The studios, whose 35 employees are paid with your tax dollars, might make owners of small broadcast operations sigh with envy.

The House studio, readily opened for a newsman's inspection, has four radio recording booths, one videotape studio with two color TV cameras, two film cameras and sophisticated videotapes and film editing facilities.

The Senate studio wasn't open for inspection. An official there said a senator was recording and a visitor might startle him.

But he said the studio has two radio recording booths, one film studio with two film cameras, a videotape studio with three color TV cameras and film and videotape editing equipment.

Critics of the studios call them publicity mills. Defenders say they're only electronic adjuncts of the printed reports by which House and Senate members fulfill their duty of keeping their constituents informed.

Question: Can radio and TV stations air these recorded reports, interviews and comments by members of the Congress when the members pay for the recordings and provide them to the stations free?

Answer: Yes, with certain restrictions, according to the Federal Communications Commission. The restrictions apply to political statements or "the discussion of controversial public issues."

If either is in the recording, the station must tell the audience that the congressman or senator speaking furnished the thing.

A loophole: The FCC says the station doesn't have to specifically say the material was provided as an inducement to get it on the air.

Marriage vows exchanged in Wilmington

Miss Sandra Marlene Bush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bush of Wilmington, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Bush, formerly of Washington C.H., became the bride of James Stephie Clawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clawson Jr. of Rt. 1, South Solon.

The marriage took place at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the Wilmington United Methodist Church with the Rev. E. James Dickey officiating at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Rodger Borro, organist, played mostly traditional music with a few modern songs, and Mrs. Donald Sanders, soloist sang the "Wedding Song", and "Lord's Prayer" following the couple's first Holy Communion. The "Bridal Chorus" by Mendelssohn was played for the recessional and Wagner's arrangement of "Bridal Chorus" for the processional.

Two seven-branch candelabra decorated with white carnations, roses and palms were in the background, and upon the altar able rested two candles and an arrangement of pink and white sweetheart roses and sweetheart carnations. Also in view was the three-branch candelabra lighted by the mothers and then by the new bride and groom following the ceremony, signifying the unity.

The acolytes were Brett and Brian Dixon.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a long gown of white satin peau over taffeta designed with fitted bodice, raised waistline and square front neckline. The A-line gored skirt had back gathers and shaped hemline forming a short self train. The sleeves were full length, gathered at the caps and into pearl buttoned cuffs. Rows of pearls and scalloped lace trimmed the neckline, waist, cuffs and hem.

Her mantilla veil of white appliqued Belgium princess lace and pearls was attached to a white satin bandeau and fell below her waist. The veil was brought from Belgium by her parents. Falling around her white Bible, the bride carried a cascade of white sweetheart carnations, pink sweetheart roses with a center of three white roses.

The attendants, Miss Beth Duffy, maid of honor, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and bridesmaids Mrs. Tom Rhoades of Cincinnati, Miss Leslie Bleason of Birmingham, Mich., and the Misses Susan and Sharon Bush, sisters of the bride, all wore long mint green polyester crepe gowns embellished with pink and white flowers. At their waistlines were long mint green velvet ribbons. Dresses were designed like that of the bride. Their large brimmed white garden hats were trimmed with white lace, mint green chiffon and pink and green flowers. They carried white baskets filled with pink sweetheart roses, pink and white sweetheart carnations and baby's breath. Each wore a short gold necklace, a gift of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a long mint green jersey knit dress with matching long sleeve jacket, and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The groom's mother wore a pink knit crepe long dress with the lace bodice set off by teardrop sequins at the waistline. Her corsage was like the bride's mother's corsage. The grandmothers, Mrs. Cleta Clawson of South Solon, Mrs. Fred Statler and Mrs. Harry Bush, of Wilmington, wore corsages of white carnations and sweetheart roses.

Miss Patti Statler, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest registry. Doug Crabbe of South Solon was best man. Seating the wedding guests were Jim Walker of London, Tom Cutler of Plain City, Joe Clawson III, brother of the groom of Columbus, Lewis Lower, brother-in-law of the groom of South Solon, and Jerry Daniels also of South Solon.

For the reception held at the Elks Lodge, tables were adorned with small burning hurricane lamps. Assisting at the punch table were Miss Suzy Thompson of Cleveland and Miss Coleen Sullivan of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The white four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with small pink flowers and topped with the bride and groom figurine used 23 years ago on her parent's wedding cake. Greenery and fresh cut flowers encircled the cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Statler of Wilmington, uncle and aunt of the bride, received guests at the club. The bride's cousins, Barbara and Brenda Statler, attended the gift table.

For traveling to an undisclosed destination, the bride wore a bright green pantsuit with a white corsage from her bridal bouquet. The couple will reside at 13394, SR 729, Jeffersonville, upon their return.

The new Mrs. Clawson graduated from Wilmington High School in 1970 and Denison University in 1973 with a bachelor of arts degree in Speech

MRS. JAMES S. CLAWSON

Science. She was an active member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority and both chapel and concert choirs, and is presently employed by the Miami Trace School District as a substitute teacher.

Her husband, a 1968 graduate of Madison South High School, received a bachelor of administration degree from Wilmington College in 1973, and attended graduate school at Ohio State University while studying agriculture. A member of the Wilmington College Janizaries fraternity, he is presently enlisted in the National Guard Reserve

Unit in Columbus, and engaged in farming near Jeffersonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clawson Jr. were hosts at a buffet style rehearsal dinner Friday evening at their farm home. Mrs. Bruce Smith assisted Mrs. Clawson with the meal. Present for the dinner were all members of the bridal party and Tom Rhoades, Mrs. Tom Cutler, Rev. and Mrs. E. James Dickey, Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Borro, Mrs. Joseph Clawson III and Tresse, and Miss Dan'yl Lower.

On March 9, the bridesmaids enjoyed an Italian luncheon given by the bride at her Wilmington residence.

Farm Bureau annual meeting Wednesday

The Fayette County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association will hold its 40th annual shareholders meeting Wednesday night in the Mahan Building on the Fairground.

A smorgasbord dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. and a business meeting will be held at 8 p.m., according to Barton Montgomery, secretary.

KENNETH PETERSON

Featured speaker will be Kenneth D. Peterson, vice president of Landmark's grain division.

Peterson, of Worthington, who joined Landmark in 1951 as program development manager in grain marketing, directs the cooperative's operations through five grain terminals which have a combined storage capacity of 8,900,000 bushels. The division has a dollar volume in excess of $110 million and also merchandises grain for 143 affiliated local elevators.

Before joining Landmark 23 years ago, Peterson served as an Extension economist in grain marketing for Ohio State University's College of Agriculture, and as an associate agricultural agent in Franklin County.

He has served on several committees of the Ohio Grain, Feed and Fertilizer Association and as a member of the Research and Advisory Committee of the National Grain and Feed Association. He has also participated in grain programs for the American Institute of Cooperation.

Born on a 200-acre farm in Carroll County, Peterson was graduated from Carrollton High School and later from the College of Agriculture at Ohio State where he became a member of the National Honor Society in Agriculture, and of Alpha Zeta agricultural honorary fraternity. He served in the U.S. Navy from 1943-1945 and was discharged with a lieutenant's rank.

During the business meeting, two members will be elected to the board of directors. Nominated are Edwin C. McCoy, Rt. 5, John Peterson, Rt. 2, Max Schlichter, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, and Norman Schiering, Rt. 5. Serving on the nominating committee were Clyde Bower, chairman, Wayne Hidy and William Dunn.

Committee continues support for Glenn

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Franklin County Democratic executive committee has maintained its support of former astronaut John Glenn for the party's nomination in the May primary.

The committee continued its endorsement of Glenn Saturday, despite the state committee's backing of incumbent U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum.

Otherwise, the county group brought its endorsements in line with the state organization's.

But it gave an unusual dual endorsement for secretary of state to state Sen. Tony P. Hall of Dayton and Beverly A. Bingle of Columbus, despite the objection of Miss Bingle. She said it was a "clear violation of the rules."

Search given up for 2 lost at sea

BAYPORT, Fla. (AP) — The Coast Guard gave up its search Sunday for M. W. Denslow, 78, of Ashland, Ohio, and his son, C. R. Denslow, 45, of Brooksville, Fla., who were lost at sea after their fishing boat capsized.

Two other members of the fishing party, James Heisserer of Brooksville and Charles Blyth of Tampa were rescued Saturday, nearly 24 hours after the accident.

Hearing slated on beer permit

There will be a public hearing in Municipal Court at 1 p.m. Friday, by the Ohio Department of Liquor Control concerning the issuance of a liquor permit for Ritt's Pizza, at Highland Ave., and Elm Streets.

William Rittenhouse has filed an application to sell 3.2 per cent draft beer on the premises, and St. Andrews Episcopal Church, located nearby on Highland Avenue, has exercised its right to oppose. A formal objection has been filed by Otis Hess, attorney representing the church, in which the public hearing was requested.

According to Hess, a primary objection to the permit is the limited parking facilities at the pizza shop. He feels that the more persons are encouraged to stay on the premises to eat, the more hazardous the area becomes for traffic.

2 drown off Florida

BAYPORT, Fla. (AP) — A Central Florida man and his father from Ohio have been reported lost at sea after a two-day search for a capsized fishing boat.

The Coast Guard identified them as C. R. Denslow, 45, of Brooksville, Fla., and his father, M. W. Denslow, 78, of Ashland, Ohio.

Two survivors, James Heisserer of Brooksville and Charles Blyth of Tampa, clung to the 18-foot boat for nearly 24 hours before rescuers found them Saturday.

"The father went off before it got dark Friday," Blyth said Sunday. "C.R. kept trying to hold Jim and his father on. When his father drifted off, that upset C.R. pretty bad. He slipped off too some time about sunrise."

Blyth said the four had left Bayport Friday morning to go fishing, and went into the water about two hours later. He said the water was not rough, but that the boat hit a wave that sent water over the bow and stern.

Heisserer's nephew, Denny Highben, said his uncle told him there were life jackets aboard but the boat was swamped so quickly nobody could get them on.

Health finance, activity report released

A balanced general health financial report and a review of 1973 activities of the Fayette County Health Department has been released by Dr. William E. Covert, county health commissioner.

The financial report disclosed total receipts of $46,850.94 and total disbursements of $46,850.94.

Receipts were $2,710 in state subsidies (evenly shared by the city and county); $14,750 in tax distribution; $20,534.70 from the tax levy; $161 from trailer permits; $40 from milk permits; $511.24 from milk inspection fees; $954 in birth and death fees; $2,190 from septic tank permits and $5,000 for contract services.

Disbursements were $36,881.03 in salaries for the health commissioner and staff personnel; $2,551.34 for travel; $83.44 in medical expense; $821.91 for office supplies; $288.88 for board member allowance; $3,630.40 for public employee retirement; $529.64 for workmen's compensation; $920.10 for hospitalization; $615.02 for telephone charges; $313.90 for milk lab fees and $215.28 in anticipated expenses.

"Demands on local health departments increase each year," Dr. Covert said. "More and more programs were legislated and responsibility is delegated to local jurisdictions, usually with the locals expected to pick up the financial load. It behooves each of us, as employers or local elected officials, to press for state aid in meeting these responsibilities," he said.

"THE PRESENT level of state assistance is less than four per cent ($1,500 or less to each department) and the district advisory council, through township trustees, villages and cities, is faced with approximately 90 per cent of the financial burden," according to Dr. Covert.

"The passage of the 2-mill additional health levy has materially stabilized the finances of the department. Income generated by licenses, permits, registrations and from services rendered with permit the department to function more fully," he said.

CAMERA Angles

NO FINGER FUMBLING camera handling for Martin Brock of Bethesda, Md., when he saw this chimp's pose on a vacation trip to Florida which won a merit award in the 1973 Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards contest. "With a 200 mm lens on the camera, I quickly focused, composed, set the exposure and snapped," Martin recalls. "Then I took a second shot and found it was the end of the roll of film. I reloaded as fast as I could but by then the chimp's mood changed and the pose and expression were gone." Having taken pictures for many years, he had done everything right and had captured the offbeat pose with his first click.

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures

There was an occasion recently where once again I could watch a couple of photographers in action and could see the difference between "know-how" and "guess-how."

Perfection might be expected if it involved professional photographers but neither one was. Yet one moved surely and quickly in studying the subject, selecting his camera angle and snapping the picture while the other checked his camera constantly, hesitated and changed his mind before finally clicking the button.

It seemed to boil down to the fact that one knew his camera and what it could do whereas the other one didn't. Even in today's era of automatic cameras some camera fans fumble with the mechanics of loading film, setting exposure adjustments, focusing, making flash settings and shooting.

They, too, should become automatic operations so that full attention is concentrated on the subject matter in front of the camera.

IT IS a reasonable assumption that anyone studying the subject and background and alert to capture a peak instant of expression, gesture or action will get better pictures than a person studying the camera adjustments and clicking away finally because he is ready . . . not the subject.

Since experience is the best teacher, if a hobbyist took enough pictures he would acquire the experience and confidence that comes with "know-how."

Though experience is best, it requires constant picture-taking occasions or situations . . . vacation and travel trips; birthday, holiday and family parties; scenic and pet pictures, etc. If the picture-taking experiences don't come often enough, there's another method for a fan to learn how to handle his camera with assuredness. It's called practice or camera homework.

WE TAKE IT for granted that practice is necessary for anyone who wants to play an instrument, dance, sing, paint or become proficient in any endeavor. Why not extend the practice to handling your camera?

Start by gathering all the instruction booklets for camera and equipment you own. Do your homework with the equipment at hand for step-by-step reference. Reviewing the instructions leads to greater understanding of the equipment as well as how to operate the items.

Then try to dry run of the various procedures that are part of camera handling. Cartridge camera owners have no problem but others may experience some difficulty loading roll film, especially under the strain of events taking place at that very moment.

There's a knack to doing it smoothly and quickly and it can be acquired with homework. If you don't have an outdated roll of film to practice with, sacrifice one roll. Go through the operation again and again until you can do it with fumble-free ease.

PRACTICE HOLDING the camera until you find a steady, comfortable grip while changing from horizontal to vertical views and back again. Learn to squeeze the shutter release without any of the camera movement that comes with jabbing a finger down.

Learn also to set combinations of shutter speeds and lens openings so you can shift to a faster or slower speed or to a larger or smaller aperture without an instant's hesitation.

Target focusing is another skill that can be acquired through dry-run practice. Shift your sights from close-up to distant objects and see how fast you can zero in on the subject. Learn to estimate distances and check your estimates with the distance scale. It is often quicker to shoot for an estimated distance than to focus optically, especially in dim light situations.

Many pros shoot a "6-foot" or an "8-foot" or a "12-foot" shot, knowing the precise settings for proper exposure at those settings, particularly in flash situations. By practice and testing, you can make your own camera settings for any future picture taking involving a closeup, a full length or a group situation and be sure of the results.

IF YOU do not yet have an automatic flash unit, become familiar with the calculations concerning the flash and your favorite film.

Test the given guide number on a practice roll of film at the different distances and make note of the settings. Bracket the exposures or, if adjustments must be made, try again.

When the results are satisfactory, attach your own distance-and-settings scale to the back of the flash unit for instant reference in future shooting.

If "practice makes perfect," you shouldn't object to prior practice in order to get perfect pictures.

Farm Bureau leaders set Washington meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 30 Ohio Farm Bureau representatives planned to meet with congressmen and federal officials in Washington today and Tuesday to discuss land-use legislation and its effect on the Buckeye State.

C. William Swank, bureau executive vice president, said the farmers would "make their feelings known to the legislators responsible for preparing guidelines, rules and regulations."

The report included a detailed review of department functions for the year:

BIRTHS

There were 561 births reported to the Fayette County Health Department in 1973, a decrease of 88 when compared with the 1972 figure.

A total of 152 of the parents reporting births to the Health Department were residents of Fayette County; 194 lived in Washington C.H. and 215 were non-residents. Eighty-six births from Highland County residents were reported during the year.

The births included 282 males, 279 females and three sets of twins.

DEATHS

A total of 309 deaths were reported to the Health Department in 1973, including 157 males and 152 females. Ninety of the deaths involved persons between 80 and 89 years old.

Eighty-four of the deaths reported involved Fayette County residents and 139 of the deceased resided in Washington C.H. Eighty-six were non-residents, including 23 from Highland County.

There were four highway deaths in Fayette County during 1973 while 13 were recorded in 1972. There were also two suicides and one drowning.

SANITATION PROGRAM

The department conducted 620 water supply inspections and samplings and 1,175 inspections of sewage disposals during the year, according to the report prepared by Charles Funk, county sanitarian.

A total of 168 inspections of food service facilities were conducted at the 18 schools during 1973; 40 inspections at eight nursing homes; 74 inspections at nine mobile home parks; 17 inspections at three swimming pools; 11 subdivision inspections; 78 inspections at four dairy farms and 108 inspections and 84 milk samples at a milk plant.

The sanitarian's report also disclosed that there were 173 food service operation licenses issued in 1973 and 1,051 consultations and inspections. Forty-one vending machine licenses were issued. The report stated there are 148 establishments in the county.

Funk said food service and vending food service machine operations are inspected regularly. As a part of the inspection services, personal return calls are made to the person responsible for the business.

Landfill inspections totaled 216 and there were 292 inspections under the nuisance program which includes rodents, garbage, refuse, sewage and animals. A total of 214 animal bite reports were investigated and 16 were submitted to laboratories for testing.

NURSING PROGRAM

Nursing visits to persons with communicable diseases, including syphilis and gonorrhea, in 1973 totaled 115.

An increase in the number venereal disease cases reported was experienced during the year. The contacts are asked to be examined by a physician in an attempt to determine asymptomatic persons. The Ohio Department of Health furnishes penicillin to the private physician via the local health department for treatment, but the patient must pay for the administration.

There is an increasing need for financial assistance to the medically indigent, the report noted. The local health department supplies the culture media from the laboratory of the Ohio Department of Health to be used in diagnosis. Starting in 1974 all expectant mothers must be cultured for venereal disease.

IMMUNIZATIONS

The report disclosed 986 diphtheria-tetanus-tetanus immunizations; 210 for diphtheria-tetanus; 1,029 for polio and 381 for measles. The immunizations are conducted in the department on referral from the family physicians.

Vaccines distributed to private physicians included DPT, 210; DT, 20; smallpox, 50; polio, 230 and 168 for measles. Smallpox is no longer being conducted on the recommendation of the Ohio Department of Health and the U.S. Public Health Service, Division of Communicable Disease Control. It is felt that smallpox is under control with only six countries in the world reporting any cases.

TUBERCULOSIS CONTROL

Only one case of tuberculosis was reported in 1973 and there were 342 visits for tuberculosis control. Tuberculosis skin testing was conducted on Head Start, first, seventh, tenth and twelfth graders in addition to school personnel, food handlers and general public and industries for a total of 4,096. There were 24 reactors and all were x-rayed.

The Ohio legislature made tuberculin skin testing of school students compulsory in 1969.

The Tuberculosis and Health Association supplies volunteers and printed material during the tuberculin testing program in schools and industries.

A total of 812 persons were tested by the state mobile chest x-ray unit. No cases were found, but there were 23 reactors. All were re-examined. The Health Department nurses assist in testing at the mobile unit.

The report pointed out that the tuberculosis program is in the midst of great change. The mobile x-ray unit buses have been discontinued by the Ohio Department of Health. Now any reactor, instead of receiving an annual chest x-ray, will be asked to take prophylactic for a year under the direction of a physician or the health department. All 1,100 reactors on the department register will be receiving correspondence explaining the new program.

MATERNAL, CHILD HEALTH

The maternal and child health services portion of the report listed 741 home visits to maternity and family planning, 98 anemic screen tests, 29 diabetes, 95 venereal disease cultures, four referred cases and four completed referrals; 140 pap smears, six suspects were referred and two of the referrals were completed.

It was pointed out that the family planning program is in its third year of operation with approximately 300 women enrolled in the program. The federally-funded program is designed to give low-income women the method of their choice that is medically indicated in limiting the size of their family.

At present, the funding of the family planning program is in the process of being transferred from the Fayette County Community Action Commission to the Health, Education and Welfare Department and the Ohio Department of Health.

'Demands increase each year . . .'

There is a possibility of the family planning unit developing a fee schedule based on ability to pay in order that Medicaid and private insurance can be utilized in the continued financing of the program.

HOME CHILD VISITS

Nurses conducted 240 visits to children under one year old; 565 from ages 1-4; 2,138 to children ages 5-14 and 53 to children ages 15-18. There were 624 visits to schools and 1,191 inspections or conferences.

Regular visits are made to schools by the public health nurse. During the visits screening programs are conducted, health problems of individual students are discussed with the teacher, immunization records are checked to be certain they are current and meet the requirements of the compulsory state immunization law and various health information is given to the teacher.

There were 343 pre-school or kindergarten conferences conducted by the nurses during the year. Parents attend the pre-school conferences in anticipation of the child starting kindergarten or first grade in the fall.

Vision screenings were conducted for 1,628 children, there were 744 home visits regarding vision, 172 vision referrals and 182 completions. Vision corrections are possible through the cooperation of the Washington C.H., Jeffersonville, Bloomingburg and Good Hope Lions Clubs.

There were 837 hearing screenings conducted by nurses in the county during the year; 335 home visits regarding hearing; 44 referrals and 23 completed referrals.

The Eyman Fund trustees, the Bureau of Crippled Children's Services and general welfare make it possible for underprivileged children to receive treatment for the correction of hearing defects.

During the year, there were 247 home visits regarding dental problems. A total of 134 of 245 referrals were completed.

The corrections for dental diseases for the underprivileged children are made possible by the Eyman Fund and general welfare. Classroom talks, film strips and toothbrush demonstrations are presented by the public health nurses. The Dental Association furnishes toothbrushes for needy children.

This past year, in cooperation with Ohio Department of Health and the schools, an educational program involving toothbrush demonstrations and self-application of fluorides was conducted in the second, third and fourth grades. It involved 511 students.

The report pointed out that there has been a much greater emphasis placed on identifying children with emotional, behavioral and learning disabilities since the employment of psychologists in the two school districts. There were 750 home visits by nurses to children with these problems.

Various health education material was provided to teachers for classroom instruction, according to the report. Fifth and sixth grade girls were shown a film followed by discussion on menstruation and physical development. Seventh grade boys and girls are provided a film on personal hygiene and the physical development during puberty.

Many impromptu classroom discussions were held at the request of the teachers regarding care of eyes and ears, nutrition, personal cleanliness and health habits.

On the high school level, the public health nurses were frequent guest speakers in the health, home economics and family living classes. Approximately 2,000 students are included in the health education programs, the report noted.

HEAD START PROGRAM

A total of 120 children were enrolled in the 1973 summer Head Start program.

All children enrolled in the program received physical examinations including urinalysis and hemoglobin from their family physicians. Arrangements were made to correct any abnormality found. Each child was taken to a dentist for prophylaxis and examination. The parents were notified of the results and asked to take the child needing restorative dentistry to the dentist of their choice.

All medical and dental care is paid by Head Start and general welfare. Tuberculin skin testing and eye screenings are conducted on each child as well as continued health teaching on cleanliness and personal hygiene by the public health nurse.

Dental film strips and toothbrush demonstrations are given in each classroom by the public health nurse. Daily toothbrushing is done by each child in the program.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN SERVICES

There were 316 nursing visits under the crippled children services program during the year. The service includes children with birth defects, congenital hearts, tumors, epilepsies, allergies, hearing aids, skin diseases, arthritis, serious injury, diseases of bones and muscles, genital urinary problems and cleft lip and palates.

Financial assistance for minor expenses such as medication, transportation, shoes, small appliances, special equipment such as beds, wheelchairs or crutches and ostomy supplies, is provided by the Eyman Fund, Fayette County chapter of the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults and the Salvation Army.

RHEUMATIC FEVER

Prevention therapy was conducted for 41 persons suffering from rheumatic fever during the year. Prophylaxis for any persons who has had the disease is available at no charge at the Health Department. This is provided through the Ohio Department of Health and paid for by the Heart Association.

O

OTHER PROGRAMS

There were a total of 9,976 visits made by public health nurses during the year, the report disclosed.

Some of the visits included adult hearing, 17; adult eye problems, 11; heart or stroke patients, 998; diabetic patients, 444; arthritis patients, 80; mental or nervous conditions, 450; adult health, 493, and cancer patients, 416. Cancer dressings are made and furnished by the Fayette County Cancer unit. A total of 650 dressings were issued.

HOME HEALTH NURSING

One registered nurse and a home health nurse aide are engaged full time conducting nursing procedures in the home. The report indicated this has continued to be an active program due to the continued cooperation of the hospital and family physicians in referring patients to the department. The number of active patients varied from month to month, but was between 25 and 35 at all times. Medicaid, Medicare, veterans administration and private insurance paid for many of the visits.

In the future, a sliding scale based on ability to pay will need to be developed, the report said. A pamphlet describing home health services has been developed and will be placed in each patient's admission packet at Fayette Memorial Hospital. This should result in additional referrals as more people become aware of the service.

Home health service visits totaled 2,894.

HEALTH EDUCATION

The report stated one phase of health education has been carried out in cooperation with the Community Action Commission's homemaker aide program. A monthly meeting has been held at which time a health education program has been presented by the public health nurse. Average attendance at the monthly has been 35-40 women from the low-income group of the county.

21 families face ouster for mine

ECKMAN, W.Va. (AP) — Notices have been sent to 21 families living in a hollow near this McDowell County community to move their homes or belongings by May 4 to make way for a new strip mine.

Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va., said Sunday Pocahontas Fuel Division of Consolidation Coal sent the 60-day evacuation notices last week to residents of Eureka Hollow. The land is owned by the coal firm, despite the fact that many of the occupants own their homes.

A spokesman for Consol, Public Relations Vice President Haze Cochran said its not fair to paint the company as "the big, dirty landlord." He promised the company would "work something out."

Hechler said he had sent a strong telegram of protest to the coal company.

"The energy crisis is no excuse to violate the rights of the people," he said.

Cochran, contacted in Pittsburgh, said it was the first he had heard of the situation. "I think the thing to do here is for all the parties concerned to sit down and see what could be worked out."

He added, "Ken Hechler is a publicity hound. All too often, Ken tries these cases in the press. If the congressman has any ideas about how we can help these people he could come to us and tell us."

SALUTE TO SEN. ARMSTRONG — Four hundred well-wishers gathered at the Logan Armory to pay tribute to State Sen. Harry L. Armstrong of Ohio's 17th Senate District who is seeking re-election to a third term. Among the audience were Dean Simeral (left), of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; Pearl Fogle (shaking hands with Sen. Armstrong), former area soil conservationist; Frank Sollars, of Fayette County, past president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, and Barton A. Holl, Logan industrialist. Armstrong's work in the Ohio Senate, particularly in solving controversial problems, was commended by Sen. Ted Gray, majority leader of the Senate.

WCH driver charged after 5-car crackup

Five cars were damaged as a result of an accident early Sunday morning in which a Washington C.H. man was charged with reckless operation and driving while intoxicated.

A few hours earlier a pony was killed in an accident near Sabina.

Robert L. Goldsberry, 34, of 1429 Forest St., who stated to police that he did not remember anything of the incident, apparently was driving on East Street when he sideswiped two cars, clipped the front end of another, and smashed into the rear of a fourth car, all of which had been parked between North and Sycamore streets. The fourth car, with brakes set and in gear, was knocked 50 feet.

Goldsberry's car was demolished and there was extensive damage to the automobiles he struck.

The owners of the other autos are Joe Burke, 311 East St.; Elmer Gengerich, White Pigeon, Mich.; and Charles W. Althouse, 329 East St., who owns two of the vehicles.

A PONY was fatally injured Saturday night when it was struck by a car driven by Howard B. Kelly, 54, Sabina. The animal, owned by Rollo M. Gray, Sabina, was on the right side of Pearson-Octa Road, near Marchant-Luttrell Road, when it was struck. No citations have been issued.

At approximately 3 a.m. Saturday a hit-and-run driver hit mailboxes owned by OK Tire Service and Mickles' Farm Machinery Repair, both located in the CCC Highway-W. The Sheriff's Department is investigating.

St. Patrick's Day at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon wore a traditional shamrock in his lapel as he played host to 350 guests at a St. Patrick's Day worship service in the East Room of the White House.

The shamrock was pinned on by Gerald Malloy, the ambassador from Ireland, who also presented the President with a crystal vase of shamrocks flown from Ireland.

The President's daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, were at the service. But Mrs. Nixon, who celebrated her 62nd birthday Saturday, was unable to attend because she has the flu.

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale of Marble Collegiate Church in New York delivered the sermon, asking people and nations to "start loving one another."

Ohio Perspective

Law would protect stripper wells

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unlike some others proposing superboards, price rollbacks and the like to fight the energy crisis, one member of the Ohio House has offered a grass roots proposal.

Rep. Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord, introduced a measure that seeks to keep small producing so-called stripper wells—those producing 10 barrels or less a day—from being plugged and abandoned.

"There is presently considerable pressure to plug wells that are not heavy producers because of the current shortage of well pipe," said Speck.

Speck's bill, which applies both to gas and oil wells, would require owners of small wells to offer to sell them to owners of the land before having the right to plug and abandon them.

The New Concord legislator said his legislation is needed because in a number of instances "well producers have been abandoning and plugging wells that were still producing at a reasonable enough level to provide a land owner and his neighbors with gas."

"When the well is plugged," said

Speck, "a usable resource is lost and the landowner is left without any fuel."

Under the terms of the bill, the well owner would be required to offer to sell the well at a fair market price, fixed by three disinterested persons. The well owner would choose one appraiser, the land owner another, and they would name the third by mutual agreement.

The procedure would apply only after the land owner had given notice of his interest in purchasing the well. Notice that he was not interested would be sufficient to allow the well owner to go ahead and plug.

While Speck regards the pipe shortage as temporary, he said "once a well is plugged that is the end of it."

The Muskingum County lawmaker said he knows of some instances where wells were plugged and abandoned while still producing.

"Four or five farmers in my district advised me that this happened," he said.

Hundreds of oil wells in Ohio, many originally drilled during the oil boom of the 1890's, lie abandoned with 50 per cent of their oil still in the ground. Modern technology hasn't yet come up with an economic means of recovering that last 50 per cent.

"There's undoubtedly large amounts of oil in those wells," said George Abraham of Standard Oil's natural resources division, "but the technology is lacking to recover it."

Auto accident claims 1 life

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)— Timothy Peabody, 22, of Ashtabula was killed and Sumpter Music, 18, of Ashtabula was injured early today in one-car crash on Ohio 531 east of Geneva, the Ohio Highway Patrol said.

The patrol said the car driven by Miss Music went out of control and struck a tree.

She was in critical condition in a Cleveland hospital, the patrol reported.

Kidnaped woman's return promised

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Ransom has been paid for the return of Eunice Kronholm and her abductors have promised to let her banker husband know her whereabouts today, a family spokesman said.

Mrs. Kronholm, whose husband, Gunnar, is president of Drivers State Bank in South St. Paul, disappeared from her Lino Lakes home Friday morning.

Her brother-in-law, the Rev. Bruce Fleming, read a brief statement in a telephone call to The Associated Press early today.

"The ransom money has been delivered to the abductors as instructed," the Rev. Mr. Fleming said. "They have promised to let Gunnar Kronholm know this morning where his wife is being held. We are now prayerfully and with hope awaiting for this information."

The Rev. Mr. Fleming, a Baptist minister whose wife is Mrs. Kronholm's sister, said he could not reveal any more information.

Earlier, the FBI said Mrs. Kronholm's automobile was found early today at a suburban Minneapolis shopping center.

The FBI said her 1969 Buick Skylark was found parked in a lot at the Southdale Shopping Center in the Minneapolis suburb of Edina.

The FBI said the car was found by the Edina Police Department, but no other details were released. Edina police referred questions about the car to the FBI.

Mrs. Kronholm, 46, was last seen by her husband when he left their home Friday morning for work.

Friday afternoon, Kronholm received a telephone call from someone who told him to deliver "all the money you can" to a "station." The caller hung up before Kronholm could clarify the demand.

Kronholm, 60, had asked the FBI not to interfere in the case. At a Saturday news conference on the front steps of his home, he pleaded for some contact from the kidnapers. He said:

"I await their demands and I will do my utmost to meet their expectations whenever and wherever they indicate."

"Her safe return is all I want."

The kidnap victim is his second wife. His first wife died of cancer several years ago.

King Charles I, barely over five feet tall, was the shortest English monarch.

TAXING INHERITANCE — Amelia Whaithe, above, of Leyland, England, has been left more than $400,000 in her employer's will, but only if she avoids makeup and men for the next five years. She had been a receptionist for her employer, a dentist, since she had left school.

Higher pay for arts chief set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Arts Council Chairman Irma Lazarus says the current salary scale for council executive director is totally out of line with the duties of the job.

In explaining why the council is advertising for a new director at a salary above the state's pay classification, Mrs. Lazarus said the job has expanded from administering about $500,000 in grants every two years to a yearly grant-level in excess of $1 million.

The current executive director, Donald R. Striebig, who will resign June 20, is paid $16,578 annually.

That's the maximum starting salary allowed under state pay statutes.

The council advertised the starting salary for director in the "low $20,000."

Mrs. Lazarus, of Cincinnati, said the state's Administrative Services Department director advised the council it can circumvent the pay requirements by writing a personal services contract.

"That's the only way they can go and get him on board at a higher salary," said Administrative Services Director Joseph Sommer.

He said whatever salary is negotiated will have to be approved by the State Controlling Board.

Sommer added he believes the executive director's salary level will be elevated when the Ohio Civil Service Commission completes a review of state pay levels this summer.

Coffee prices now on escalator

NEW YORK (AP) — American coffee roasters say the price of coffee is going up and there's nothing they can do about it except wait.

The coffee producing nations are restricting exports while demanding higher prices. Droughts, frosts and commodity speculation have also contributed to the rise.

Within the past four months, wholesale coffee prices have risen from 10 to 20 per cent, with many companies passing along successive penny-a-ounce increases.

"We are entirely in the hands of the producing nations, dependent on them for supply," said John Buckley, vice president of purchasing for Nestle Co. Inc., the largest maker of freeze-dried coffee. "The producers are making available slightly less coffee than the world could readily absorb in order to keep the upward momentum on prices."

Still, some observers see a trend developing that could stabilize prices, noting that market prices for future contracts have eased.

Brazil, which pulled out of an international pricing agreement last September, now says it's willing to consider a new agreement to keep its gains secure. Other countries also are seeking ways to keep their prices from falling.

Because of coffee rust disease, the early frost and a lack of interest by growers, Brazil, the world's largest producer, harvested 10 million fewer bags of coffee in the 1973-74 season than the year before.

There are 132 pounds of coffee beans per bag.

For the first three months of this year the Brazilian Coffee Institute—IBC—says the country will only export 5.1 million bags, four million less than the similar period in 1973.

Yet because of the higher prices, the outgoing president of the institute, Carlos Alberto de Andrade Pinto, predicted last week that Brazil would shatter all records with $1.6 billion in coffee revenues in 1974.

Pinto said the price of coffee had risen from 42 cents to 75 cents a pound on the international market during his 22-month tenure. He hailed this "emancipation of coffee."

"The consumer countries take it for granted that because coffee is produced in underdeveloped countries, it should bring low prices," Pinto told a group of coffee executives in Rio de Janeiro.

For 10 years the world's coffee market was governed by the International Coffee Agreement, which set export quotas and prices. However last September, 41 producing nations bolted the agreement after they failed to reach an accord on prices with the consuming nations.

To stabilize prices, Brazil, Columbia, the Ivory Coast and later Portugal set up a multinational marketing firm called Cafe Mundial. Together the countries account for 56 per cent of the world's coffee production.

Many downhill skiers, beginners and veterans alike, their enthusiasm frosted by long waits for the ski tow and by traffic jams on the ski slopes, have turned to cheaper, freer cross-country skiing, the National Geographic Society says.

Class AAA All-Ohio cagers named

DAVE PERSINGER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two-time all-stater Mark Bayless of Chillicothe, an all-purpose guard, today was named The Associated Press Class AAA Ohio

High School Basketball Player of the Year.

The AP also selected Bob Rupert of state poll champion Canton McKinley as its Class AAA State Coach of the Year.

The selections were based on regular season performances only and were selected on the recommendations of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Bayless, a 6-foot-2 senior, was the lone player to make the first team for the second straight season. He also was selected twice as the Southeastern District Player of the Year.

The fifth leading scorer in Chillicothe history averaged 21.3 points, eight rebounds and five assists a game this winter despite injuries.

Rupert, Canton McKinley's coach for 13 years, guided the Bulldogs to an 18-0 regular season. Rupert also has turned out three state poll champions in his McKinley career.

Before tournament play began, Rupert had piled up a 333-88 career record, including a 243-50 mark at McKinley.

Bayless edged 6-7 Terry Burris of Columbus Whitehall, the reigning state high jump champion who averaged 23.7 points, and 6-8 Lawrence Boston of Cleveland Kennedy, with a 24.5 average, as the Player of the Year.

Burris and Boston also landed first team berths on the allstate team. Both are seniors.

Top prep cage action slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Top-ranked Canton McKinley, Akron Manchester and Lorain Clearview are solid favorites to win the three divisional championships in the 52nd Ohio High School Basketball Tournament this week.

McKinley, an overwhelming choice as the state Class AAA poll champion, brings a 24-0 record into the semifinals and finals in Ohio State's St. John Arena.

Manchester, the only other unbeaten team remaining with a 24-0 mark, was ranked second in the final state Class AA ratings. Clearview, 22-2, was No. 4 in Class A.

The Class A schools begin the three-day tournament Thursday night.

Mount Blanchard Riverdale, 21-3 and rated 17th, plays seventh-ranked Pitsburg Franklin-Monrie, 24-3, at 7:30. Clearview takes on 1972 champion Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South, unrated this season with a 20-4 record, in the 9:30 nightcap.

In Class AA semifinals Friday, Manchester is matched with No. 21 Cincinnati McNicholas, 19-6, at 11 a.m. and third-ranked Genoa, 22-1, tangles with unrated Columbus Hartley, 19-5, at 2:30 p.m.

In Class AAA semifinals Friday night, defending champion Cincinnati Elder, 21-3 and 16th rated, plays 1922 king Mount Vernon, 19-4 and No. 19, at 6. McKinley draws No. 17 Toledo Scott, 22-2, at 9:30.

The Class A title game will be played at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, followed by the Class AA showdown at 3 p.m. and the Class AAA championship at 7:30 p.m.

Columbus Ready, the 1973 Class AA champion, and Marion Pleasant, last year's Class A ruler, were eliminated earlier in the playoffs.

McKinley is making its 14th trip to the state semifinals without a previous championship. The Bulldogs have been beaten seven times in the semifinals and six in the title contest.

Meanwhile, Elder and Indian Valley South try to stretch their success stories another chapter.

Elder went undefeated in 1972 football and won the basketball, baseball and cross country state crowns in 1973.

Indian Valley South, coached by easy-going, shrewd Charlie Huggins, lost all of its starters from last year and yet has reached the final four for the third straight season.

In Class AAA regional championships Saturday night, McKinley bombed Boardman 98-71, Scott edged Lorain King 59-55, Mount Vernon ousted Columbus Brookhaven 62-42 and Elder eliminated seven-time state king Middletown 79-62.

In Class AA regionals, Manchester wheeled by Twinsburg Chamberlin 75-58, Hartley nipped Tiltonsville Buckeye South 77-76, McNicholas beat Camden Preble Shawnee 76-63 and Genoa thumped Elyria Catholic 64-48.

In Class A Regionals, Pitsburg Franklin-Monroe knocked off Pleasant 64-52, Riverdale defeated Continental 60-58 in overtime, Clearview nudged Dalton 58-56 and Indian Valley South slipped by Peebles 43-41.

Houston Aeros edge Crusaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At the age of 45, father Gordie Howe shows no signs of giving in to Father Time.

Howe set up one goal in the third period and netted his 31st of the season for the winner as the Houston Aeros edged the Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 Sunday night in a World Hockey Association game.

Howe's winning goal came on a rebound at 7:40 of the final period after his son, Mark, pulled Cleveland goalie Bob Whidden out of position.

Elsewhere in the WHA, the Winnipeg Jets blasted the New England Whalers 10-1, the Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated the Quebec Nordiques 5-3.

UCLA gears up for N.C. State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA, favored to win its eighth straight National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship, geared up for Saturday's semifinal meeting with top-ranked North Carolina State at Greensboro, N.C., with some old fashioned sabre-rattling.

Coach John Wooden sounded the challenge when he recalled the Bruins' 84-66 romp over the Wolfpack last December in St. Louis.

"I want them to remember we beat them by 18 points on a neutral court with Bill Walton playing only half the game," declared Wooden. "I want them to dwell on that."

UCLA, 25-3 on the season, made it into the semis with an impressive 83-60 rout of San Francisco Saturday in the finals of the Far West Regionals. All-Americans Keith Wilkes and Bill Walton paced the attack with 27 and 17 points, respectively.

North Carolina State cruised into the finals with a 100-72 thumping of Pittsburgh in the East Regionals. The Wolfpack's only concern was the for the well-being of All-American David Thompson, who suffered a concussion when he fell to the floor in the first half.

He was hospitalized Saturday night, released Sunday and is expected to be at full speed for UCLA.

Tom Burleson had 26 points and 12 rebounds for the Wolfpack, 28-1 on the year.

The other semifinal Saturday will match Midwest champion Marquette against Midwest titlist Kansas. The Warriors, 25-4, edged Michigan 72-70 on the strength of a pair of free throws by Dave Delman with 45 seconds left. It marks the first time in nine NCAA appearances Marquette has made it to the semis.

Kansas, 23-5, shaded Oral Roberts 93-90 as reserve Tommie Smith sank a pair of baskets in the final 28 seconds. Danny Knight had 19 points to lead the balanced Jayhawks attack.

At New York's Madison Square Garden, Connecticut, Utah, Boston College and Memphis State scored first-round victories Sunday in the National Invitation Tournament.

Jim Foster pumped in 27 points to lead Connecticut past St. John's, N.Y., 82-70. Tickey Burden's 34 points powered Utah to a 102-89 victory over Rutgers. Jere Nolan's foul shot in the final seconds gave Boston College a 63-62 upset of Cincinnati. Memphis State held off Seton Hall 73-72 by virtue of Dexter Reed's free throw with 30 seconds left.

In Saturday's NIT action, Purdue surprised North Carolina 82-71, Maryland-Eastern Shore dumped Manhattan 84-81, Jacksonville beat Massachusetts in overtime 73-69 and Hawaii edged Fairfield 66-65.

Southern California and Indiana advanced to tonight's finals of the Collegiate Commissioners Association tourney with hard-earned overtime victories Sunday.

The Trojans, 24-4, got by Bradley 76-73 as Dan Anderson and Bob Trowbridge teamed for nine points in the extra period. The Hoosiers, 22-5, edged Toledo 73-72 on a clutch basket by freshman Kent Beson.

West Georgia claimed the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship Saturday with a 97-79 romp over Alcorn State. Tom Turner topped the Braves with 28 points and Clarence Walker, named the tourney's Most Valuable Player, added 24.

Bucks bury Chicago Bulls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The Bulls are an aggressive team but today they went beyond aggressiveness," complained Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello after his Bucks buried Chicago 107-82 Sunday in a fight-filled National Basketball Association game.

"Today it became dirty."

The Bucks and the Bulls treated a national television audience to a foul-laden, physical contest that was never really close. The Bucks roared off to 39-22 lead midway through the second quarter and coasted home.

In other NBA action, Los Angeles trimmed New York 126-114; Boston defeated Capital 129-103; Detroit stopped Buffalo 116-109; Cleveland dumped Philadelphia 115-99; Kansas City-Omaha downed Houston 125-114; and Phoenix whipped Seattle 133-108.

Kareem Abdul Jabbar turned in a big game for Milwaukee with 38 points, 22 rebounds and a defensive performance that thoroughly intimidated the Bulls, who hit just 27 per cent of their shots from the floor.

Chicago center Dennis Awtrey tried to slow Jabbar down with a punch in the eye in the third period but was thrown out of the game for his efforts.

Bob Dandridge added 20 points for the Bucks while Howard Porter netted 22 for the Bulls.

Detroit Tigers still look like 3rd place team

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The optimistic banter is much like it is most years in spring training for the Detroit Tigers.

"If we get off to a good start, I think we'll make some people eat crow," says pitcher Joe Coleman.

"I think we're going to surprise a lot of people," adds outfielder Jim Northrup. "The critics have written us off, but we've got a lot of guys who want to win."

"Baltimore is the team to beat and we have as good a chance as anyone else of beating them," chimes in new Manager Ralph Houk.

The Tigers still have the ability to battle with the contenders — but when it's all over, it looks like they'll be third in the American League East, behind Baltimore and Boston.

Having guys who want to win might help, but it won't help overcome Detroit's questionable pitching staff, lack of hitting superstars and absence of speed.

Al Kaline will be the designated hitter and can reach the 3,000-hit circle with 139 more hits. He has a .299 career batting average but beyond him, nobody can routinely be expected to hit .300.

There are good hitters like Willie Horton, Northrup and Bill Freehan — but they are inconsistent. The team was second in the league with 157 home runs last season — but it seems to have passed the point where the long ball can do it all for them. In 1973, for instance, Norm Cash led the team in homers with 19 — but had only 40 runs batted in.

Aurelio Rodriguez leads an outstanding defensive lineup and may be the best fielding third baseman in the league, but his .222 average and team-leading RBI count of 58 won't scare many teams. Center fielder Mickey Stanley and shortstop Ed Brinkman are the other superior defensive players.

Coleman and Mickey Lolich have averaged 21 victories apiece the past three years, but who can say whether either can keep it up?

It's strictly a wait-and-see situation as to who the other starting pitchers will be. They will come from among veterans Woodie Fryman, Jim Perry, newcomer Luke Walker and youngsters Fred Holdsworth, Lerrin LaGrow and Bill Slayback. John Hiller is among the best relief pitchers in baseball and is looking to newcomer Jim Ray and perhaps Chuck Seelbach for help.

The biggest spring training battle is for second base between rookie John Knox and journeyman Gary Sutherland, his roommate who was with Houston last year. Either is capable of handling the job vacated when Dick McAuliffe was traded to Boston.

A new atmosphere of looseness pervades the camp in contrast to the tenseness generated under the regime of former Manager Billy Martin. But can such a change produce better results?

There'll be surprises. There always are. But there are bound to be individual disappointments and only the Tiger superfan can expect a pennant this season.

Smith, Cards defeat Red Sox 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The continuing saga of Reggie Smith and Carlton Fisk — former teammates now gone separate ways to their mutual satisfaction — seems to have a way of sneaking from the locker room to the diamond.

The stage was set for the saga's latest act by a game between the Boston Red Sox, Smith's former team, and his new team, the St. Louis Cardinals.

Smith took a few pot shots at Fisk before the game, calling the Boston catcher a "crybaby" and "backstabber," then took another shot at pitcher Diego Segui in the ninth inning, sending Segui's first pitch out of the park and helping the Cards to a 4-3 exhibition victory over the Red Sox.

Meanwhile, Fisk took a shot of his own, in the fifth inning. It was a foul tip off the bat of Joe Torre that caught the All-Star catcher in the groin and probably will sideline him for two or three days.

Smith's homer tied the game at 3-3, and then Ken Reitz singled in the winning score with two out.

In other exhibition games, the other half of the Boston club beat Philadelphia 10-7, Los Angeles squashed the New York Mets 9-2, Minnesota beat Houston 9-5, Cincinnati blanked Atlanta 7-0, Baltimore defeated Pittsburgh 7-3, the Chicago White Sox got by Kansas City 8-5, the Chicago Cubs beat Oakland 6-2, San Francisco defeated California 8-2, Montreal blasted Texas 5-1, Cleveland downed Milwaukee 3-1, and the Yankees pummeled Detroit 5-1.

"I'm glad to get away from a crybaby like Fisk," Smith said. He said since the 1973 campaign, "I've only seen his picture in the paper and read all that stuff he's been saying behind my back. He didn't have the nerve to say it to my face."

Fisk retaliated by calling Smith "a troublemaker," but would not discuss the situation further, keeping his distance from Smith during the game. Neither exchanged words.

Steve Carlton was tagged for six runs in three innings, and outfielder Bernie Carbo got four singles and drove in three runs to lead the other half of the Boston contingent. Rick Wise got the victory by holding Philadelphia scoreless for five innings.

Ron Cey, who has six RBIs in his past two games, had a homer and a single in Los Angeles' rendering of the New York Mets. Dave Lopes stole three bases for the Dodgers.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers announced that third baseman Ken McMullen had left the club to join his wife, Bobbie, who is seriously ill and being hospitalized in California. Mrs. McMullen underwent surgery last May for cancer.

Bob Darwin homered for two runs, and Steve Braun's circuit blow drove in another three, pacing Minnesota to its first victory of the exhibition season. Houston took a 3-1 lead after Harmon Killebrew had put the Twins on the board with a single in the first inning.

Cincinnati exploded for 17 hits and pitchers Pat Osburn, Steve Kealey and Pat Zachery held the Braves scoreless in the Reds' victory. Ken Griffey led the Reds at the plate with three hits, while Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron went hitless in four at-bats.

Pittsburgh committed four costly errors in the game, and the Orioles jumped to a 5-2 lead in the fourth inning on four runs off Pirate starter Bruce Kison. Inos Cabell had three RBIs for Baltimore.

The White Sox scored seven runs off Marty Pattin in the first three innings to move to an easy victory over Kansas City. Jorge Orta had two singles and a homer with four RBIs for Chicago.

The Cubs got homers from Vic Harris and Jerry Morales, and Bill Madlock added three hits to pace Chicago past the world champion A's. Madlock, in 29 at-bats, has 18 hits for a .620 average so far in preseason play.

Three Giant pitchers — John D'Acquisto, Frank Riccelli, and Mike Caldwell — held California to three hits, and San Francisco tagged Nolan

Tyan for five runs in four innings, including Chris Speier's solo homer.

Bob Bailey doubled twice, scored two runs and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly for Montreal. The Expos touched Texas relief pitcher Pete Broberg for three runs in the fifth inning.

Charlie Spikes doubled in Cleveland's winning run, and shortstop Frank Duffy, who had homered to tie the game in the third inning, scored an insurance run in the Indians' victory over Milwaukee.

Bobby Murcer personally accounted for three Yankee runs that carried the New York club past Detroit, now managed by former Yankee mentor Ralph Houk. Murcer doubled home two runs and scored the other himself in the first meeting of the two teams since Houk gave up the Yankee reins.

Big Red Machine back on track

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A trio of new faces fighting for survival on the Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff put the Big Red Machine back on the winning track Sunday.

The Reds, battered for 21 runs in two back-to-back losses, roared back with a 7-0 shutout of the Atlanta Braves.

Rookies Dan Osborn and Pat Zachry combined with newcomer Steve Kealey to register the Reds' second whitewash of the spring.

They permitted only five hits, none of them by slugger Hank Aaron, who made four trips to the plate.

And while the Braves were showing little lift at the plate, Reds' outfielder Cesar Geronimo indicated he doesn't plan to give up the fight for centerfield.

Geronimo suffered through his worst major league season last year, hitting only .210. When the Reds acquired Merv Rettenmund from the Baltimore Orioles, it was assumed Geronimo was ticketed for more bench duty in 1974.

But Geronimo is making a strong bid for the job. His three hits Sunday lifted his batting average to .500.

Asked what snapped him out of his long slump, he replied succinctly: "Rettenmund."

Kealey, who came to the Reds in the Jim McGlothlin trade attributed his sparkling two-hit effort to similar reasons.

"I'm fighting for my life," said Kealey, who suffered through all of 1973 with a sore arm.

"I've got to do it now," said Kealey after his four innings of work.

"I've got to make the major league club. If I get sent to the minor leagues I may be there the rest of my life," he said.

Rookie Ken Griffey teamed up with Geronimo to add three hits to the Reds' 17-hit barrage.

The Reds return to Tampa today to face the Philadelphia Phils. Jack Billingham, who turned in a strong five-inning stint in his last outing, is scheduled to start for Cincinnati.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Contact Your Board of Health

I am planning a three-week concentrated work holiday in Russia.

We are taking along our two young children. I know there are special diseases in tropical countries. Are there any unusual medical problems that exist in the colder climate of Russia?

Mr. E.S.B., N.J.

Dear Mr. B.:

People like yourself who are planning to stay in any foreign land are wise to inquire about special precautions that safeguard health.

Your local Board of Health receives daily bulletins from the Contagious Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga. These bulletins report to the nation any unusual outbreak of disease and give protective precautions against them.

This, of course, applies to visiting any foreign country.

If special inoculations are necessary they will suggest it. Routine immunization against cholera, typhoid and yellow fever are not always necessary, but are suggested if there happens to be any current outbreak.

There has been much discussion about the need for smallpox vaccination. Formerly, this was necessary in order to return to the United States. Even though America has abandoned this ruling, it must be remembered that certain foreign countries still demand evidence of vaccination before admitting visitors.

What is the cause of "weeping eczema" of the ear canal?

Sometimes my ear is unbearably and painfully encrusted.

Miss G.B., Ind.

Dear Miss B.:

"Weeping eczema" is a dermatitis, or inflammation of the skin, that lines the outer ear canal.

Almost always it is caused by some allergy to hair lacquer, hair dyes, eye makeup, sprays, and interestingly, nail polish. It is called "weeping" because it oozes a fine serum. If unattended, the skin can become infected, and a double problem of infection and allergy exists.

It is imperative to find out what the offending substance is if recurrent attacks are to be avoided.

Treatment with antibiotics and cortisone and wet dressings is effective in control of the pain, the itching and the swelling that accompany this condition.

Sheep lives high as dispute rages

LONDON (AP) — A fully grown sheep found wandering near London's Euston Station has created a host of woolly problems for police. Frank Pawlowski claims ownership of the animal and says he wants to sacrifice it to a sun god in a religious ritual. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says this is illegal.

While the dispute rages, the 3-year-old ewe has eaten all the roses around the police station where she is detained.

Two brothers on trial in burglary case

Prospective jurors were being screened late Monday morning in Fayette County Common Pleas Court in preparation for the opening of a major burglary trial.

The jury for the trial, which involves two Kettering brothers who were captured by a Washington C.H. police officer after a major burglary at Craig's Department Store Jan. 8, had not been seated by press time Monday.

David D. Caraway, 29, and Larry S. Caraway, 28, both of Kettering, are charged on numerous counts in connection with the store burglary in which more than $2,000 worth of merchandise was stolen.

Charges lodged against the two burglary defendants included suspicion of breaking and entering of an unoccupied structure, breaking and entering trespass with felonious purpose, tampering with a coin-operated machine, vandalism, endangering vandalism, criminal damaging or endangering, criminal mischief, possession of criminal tools and grand theft.

The two defendants have been lodged in the county jail in lieu of $34,000 bond each since the January burglary.

The Caraway brothers are being defended by Dennis Ulrich, a Washington C.H. attorney, who was appointed by the court. The prosecution's case is being presented by James Kiger, county prosecuting attorney, and Assistant Prosecutor John H. Roszmann.

Unearned pay charges investigated

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An investigation will be made into charges detailed in a 12-page report which states psychiatrists, psychologists and other professionals working for the Cincinnati Health Department were paid for hours they claimed, but did not work.

City Solicitor Thomas A. Luebbers said the matter will be referred to criminal justice authorities if the investigation proves the charges are substantiated.

The study was submitted to City Council members two weeks ago.

The document said "There was evidence that certain staff and consultants to the clinic were engaging in questionable fiscal and administrative practices."

"It was common practice for the psychiatric and psychological consultants to record on their time slips two hours work for every one hour of actual work they completed for the clinic," the study said.

The report said "exorbitant amounts of overtime pay" were being spent at the clinic for two staff positions, "the funds for which were taken from civil service positions that had never been filled."

Pay requests were entered for days the clinic was closed, the study said.

Man held for streak in green

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's no law against celebrating St. Patrick's Day with the wearing of the green — unless that's all you're wearing.

Clayton, Mo., police said James D. Braun, 27, of nearby Afton, colored his body green for a "streak" through town. Streaking is the recent fad of dashing about without any clothes on.

Braun was arrested as he streaked through an intersection Saturday night. He was charged with public drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

The streaking fad, meanwhile, continued.

In Kochi, Japan, witnesses said a nude young man streaked the town in frigid weather for two solid hours Sunday night before disappearing into a dark alley. He was not apprehended or identified.

Witnesses said at one point he entered a snack bar, dashing back out after a polite "Good Evening" to the customers.

In London, police arrested a 21-year old woman Sunday after she and six other persons streaked in the nude across Kingston Bridge. The woman, whose name police would not disclose, faces indecent exposure charges.

VANDALISM — Charles Grieves, a city school engineer who discovered the damage, is shown with one of the 34 windows broken at the Junior High School building, 318 N. North St. Vandals threw rocks and chunks of blacktop through the panes sometime Saturday night or Sunday. Police are investigating. Grieves discovered the broken windows Monday morning when he entered the building to turn on the boiler. Damage was expected to reach several hundred dollars. The school system carries a $100 deductible policy.

Two more suspects held in wire thefts

As a result of an investigation being conducted by Sheriff Don Thompson and Sgt. J.L. Emrick regarding recent thefts of copper telegraph wire from B&O Railroad property in Fayette County during the past several weeks, two area men have been arrested on charges of larceny and receiving stolen property.

Harry V. Wheeler, 27, Milledgeville, and Raymond G. Sloan, 31, Jeffersonville, have been charged. Wheeler is charged with larceny, and Sloan is charged with larceny and receiving stolen property.

Wheeler has been released on $500 bond, while Sloan is being held in the Fayette County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond.

Violence mars Irish holiday

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — St. Patrick's Day in Northern Ireland was marked by somber sermons, the killing of a British soldier and an unsuccessful arms raid on an American navy post.

"The majority of Irish people are sickened by the ever-recurring violence, death, maiming and destruction," said the Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, John Cardinal Conway, in Armagh.

The soldier was killed in an ambush of a British motor patrol by five gunmen in a Catholic section of Londonberry. He was the 976th confirmed fatality in more than four years of communal warfare, and the eighth person killed in three days.

Other guerrillas were routed by guards at a U.S. Navy communications center outside Londonberry after they invaded it in a hijacked pickup truck.

Shultz leaves puzzling imprint

NEW YORK (AP) — The most powerful economic mind in the Nixon administration, outgoing Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz cannot be portrayed in a snapshot. From different angles he seemed to be many men.

This in part may be attributed to the countless facts of Shultz' job as assistant to the President for economic policy, which required him to coordinate seemingly disparate policies into a philosophy of government.

To some degree he succeeded. His integrity, professionalism and knowledge of economic matters brought him respect and trust from counterparts abroad. But domestically, government policy confused many people.

Shultz and his associates inherited problems that previous administrations had failed to tackle head on. They did so. The long-delayed devaluation, for instance, was accomplished during Shultz' years.

As a result, the still fragile but more realistic world monetary system is now looking forward, however shakily, instead of toward a devastating collapse that was feared by some of the world's leaders.

Domestically, however, the administration seemed to stumble from one phase of price controls to another, always expressing distaste for the role it was playing and, critics maintain, playing the role only half-heartedly.

An orderly thinker, Shultz during the past few years has had to deal with an economic situation termed a mess by a good many business and academic economists.

Inflation intensified rather than receded. The administration ran up roughly $60 billion in budget deficits. Unemployment never got down to the original goal of 4 per cent, and it is rising again.

Much of the poor domestic image was self-created by the continual declaration of goals that couldn't be met and by the incessant, futile promise by other administration spokesmen that the worst was over. Clearly, it wasn't.

To many critics, Shultz was an enigma. Widely known as a proponent of free markets, he was consistent in advocating lower trade barriers and in stating his belief that the central government didn't belong in the market place.

During his five years, however, the federal government moved into the market place in almost inextricable ways. Never since World War II—or in peacetime since the great depression of the 1930s—have government been so involved.

A school of thought exists that Shultz and his associates had little opportunity to put into action the theories in which they believed. Practical demands, it is said, simply overwhelmed philosophical considerations.

Inflation, for example, is far less a domestic matter than it was 10 or 20 years ago. The world's trading nations are more intricately related, and internal imbalances spread like contagion.

The entire industrialized world is fighting inflation, partly because every one of them is committed to running its economy intensively in order to satisfy the rising aspirations of millions of people seeking a better life.

Opposed to wage-price controls as a method of checking inflation, Shultz and his associates nevertheless submitted to public pressure. The alternative was an induced recession, which ironically may have come anyway.

Atop all this came a unique economic dimension: shortages. The world had never before had to deal with massive shortfalls of so many major commodities, and no programs were available to deal with the problem smoothly.

The summation of Shultz' years can only be made when a more historical perspective can be achieved years from now.

But one observation with which many observers of various persuasions might agree is that Shultz has been an informed, sturdy executive who was forced to learn that every economic position today is a political one also, and that politics is the art of compromise.
